It's a Party, A Star Party with Telescopes and More

To Celebrate International Observe the Moon Night

Phoenix, AZ: The Phoenix Astronomical Society will be gathering on Saturday night, September 19 at the Apache Wash Trail Head, 1600 E Sonoran Desert Dr, Phoenix, AZ 85085 to celebrate International Observe the Moon Night. Park entrance gates close at 7:00 p.m., so visitors need to arrive before 7:00 p.m.

Activities will include numerous telescopes of all kinds, searching the evening skies and focusing on our nearest neighbor, the moon. Astronomy society members will be present to answer questions and distribute literature on the moon and other night sky objects.

This is a free family event; the public is invited, however; we request everyone to register online in case of foul weather. To register and obtain more information go to www.pasaz.org, "events".

Yes, if you have a telescope, bring it so we can all enjoy the view of our moon.
